PHG Foundation

The PHG Foundation is an independent, non-profit organisation with the mission making science work for health. The leading international centre for public health genomics, it identifies and promotes the best opportunities for biomedical innovation to improve health and tackle disease, developing models and capacities for translation into improved clinical and public health policies and practices. This includes expert research, analysis, debate, knowledge brokering and health services planning.

Born Healthy and the PHG Toolkit for Health Needs Assessment Toolkit in Congenital Disorders were conceived, developed and funded by the PHG Foundation as our response to a formal commitment made at the 2010 Clinton Global Initiative meeting: 'We commit to helping low and middle income countries to tackle birth defects by building better healthcare services for their populations'.

Mothercare Group Foundation

The Mothercare Group Foundation was set up to help ensure the good health and wellbeing of mums-to-be, new mums, their babies and children, with a particular focus on special baby care needs and premature births. They have provided generous financial support for the development of Born Healthy and the PHG Toolkit.

UCL Centre for Health Informatics and Multiprofessional Education

CHIME is a joint initiative of University College London and the Whittington Hospital NHS Trust. It undertakes research and delivers undergraduate and postgraduate education in information and quality management, to support clinical practice and to benefit communities - both patients and health care professionals - locally, nationally and globally. CHIME's WHO Collaborating Centre for the Community Control of Hereditary Disorders has provided expert input to the development of the PHG Toolkit, including previously unpublished data from the Model1 Global Database of Constitutional Congenital Disorders.

Wellbeing of Women

Wellbeing of Women is a charity that raises money to improve women's health through research, training and education. They have generously supported Born Healthy by providing the venue for this international meeting, in association with the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists.

Costello Medical Consulting

Costello Medical Consulting provides specialised medical communication and literature review services to the pharmaceutical industry, including development of medical education material. They have provided expert input to the development of the PHG Toolkit on a pro bono basis.
